FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Date: November 8, 2016

(CPD # 16-42215-AR)

(CONCORD, NH) - On November 8, 2016 at approximately 1:39 AM Concord Police responded to the Concord Co-Op, located at 24 South Main Street for a report of a disturbance.

Upon arrival it was learned that a female employee was taking boxes out to the dumpster when she was approached by an unidentified male subject. The male subject first asked if she needed help and when the employee told him no, he began to walk towards her claiming he was a "vampire" and that he could help her. The male subject then began to run towards her.

The female ran into the receiving door of the Concord Co-Op while the male pursued her into the building. The female reported that the male intruder yelled at that she "..sounded like his wife and that he could save me…" and "just touch me, I can save you". The female began yelling to her co-worker for help and then fell to the ground. At this point the male subject grabbed the female by wrapping his arms around her.

A male co-worker arrived at which time the intruder attempted to punch him, initiating a fight between the two. While fighting with the intruder, the male employee yelled for the female employee to call police. While fighting, a display case was knocked over. Despite the male employee demanding that the intruder stay away, the intruder continued to engage the employee.

In an act of self-defense the male employee took out a box cutter while yelling "get away from me!" At this, the intruder began to run toward the back of the store and ended up inside a walk-in freezer. The male employee attempted to lock the intruder inside the freezer. While doing so the employee cut the intruder at least one time on the hand. The intruder was able to force his way out of the freezer and once out, was able to pin the employee on the ground in an attempt to grab the box cutter.

It was around this point officers from Concord PD arrived, initially detaining both the male employee and the male intruder. Once officers learned what had occurred, they released the male employee and arrested the male intruder. The intruder was identified as,

MAY, JACOB B (Age 21)
HOMELESS
CONCORD, N.H. 03301

Once the scene was under control Jacob told an officer that he was a "vampire, ghost rider, Cpt. Jack Sparrow from Pirates of the Caribbean, Mr. Miyagi from the Karate Kid, and a leader of a band" in addition to other comments. The officer observed that it was apparent that Jacob was under the influence of some alcohol or drugs or combination thereof.

Jacob was charged with,

BURGLARY (RSA635:1) (Felony A)
SIMPLE ASSAULT (RSA631-2:a) (Misdemeanor A)

While on scene officers became aware that on November 6, 2016 at approximately 8:49 PM Concord Police had responded to the area of 65 Clinton Street for a suspicious person. A homeowner called and stated that a white male in his twenties approximately 5'6", wearing a red and black flannel shirt, with scruffy facial hair had knocked on the window of the residence and asked the resident if he felt safe and then fled the area.

Officers were later able to locate the suspect who was identified as Jacob May. It was evident to officers at the time that Jacob was under the influence of either drugs or alcohol. Jacob had stated that he had some combination of marijuana, alcohol, methamphetamine, and spice in his system at the time. Jacob was arrested at that time and charged with Prowling (a violation) and issued a summons and then placed into protective custody. (CPD Case#16-42043-AR)

Jacob was processed at the Concord Police Department and later refused bail. He is scheduled to be arraigned on November 8, 2016 at the 6th Circuit Concord District Division Court.
